Every resident is assessed individually. Depending on the person's needs and applicable licensing, fire-clearance, hospice, and regulatory requirements, our homes may be able to support:

- Mobility and transfer assistance, including wheelchair and mechanical-lift needs when appropriate.
- Dementia and memory support following an individual safety review.
- Help with bathing, dressing, grooming, toileting, incontinence care, and other daily activities.
- Bedbound or substantially dependent residents when required clearances, staffing, plans, and exceptions are in place.
- Coordination with an outside hospice agency when required conditions are satisfied.
- Twenty-four-hour non-medical care, supervision, observation, and family communication.

What happens next

1. Initial conversation: We learn what is changing, where the person is now, and what the family needs most.
